

Moon Hall School

Moon Hall is a specialist school for dyslexic pupils and the emphasis is firmly on helping them remove the barriers to reading, writing, spelling and organisation that often accompany this neurodiverse condition. This is where assistive technology comes into its own.

Once they leave school, our learners will be go on to university, apprenticeships, and employment and touch typing is one of the tools they will be using in their day to day life, far more frequently than handwriting.

Equipped with a qualification will provide inclusive learning opportunities, enabling further vocational advancement and progression in both further education and the workplace. They would be a wonderful asset to learners.'
